Customer Reviews

Gr 3Ã¢Â¢6Ã¢Â¢ •With more than 100 full-color illustrations these titles are visual treats, while providing a good deal of content. Each features four main sections with two-page chapters within those sections concentrating on specific topics. Within "Dinosaur Life," for instance, readers will find spreads on the "Dino Nursery," "Growing Up Dinosaur," "Chomp or Be Chomped," and "The Plant Eaters." The layouts include headlines, text boxes, illustrations, and quick facts. Mythology even offers an Olympus Family Tree and isn't limited to the gods of the Greek pantheon. Anansi, Horus, and Ganesha are all at home in these pages. The books are not only easy to read and understand, they're also fun. Each volume includes a glossary (with an accompanying quiz to increase comprehension) and sources for more information (books, websites). Good purchases where these subjects are much in demand. --Marie Drucker, Malverne Public Library, NY

The latest in the Everything series will certainly appeal to young dinosaur enthusiasts. Illustrations rule here, even though, as the text mentions, scientists aren't sure about the color, shape, and texture of most dinosaurs. Tempesta's illustrations present dinos of all sizes and dimensions, like the Mamenchisaurus, whose neck was 35 feet long. These pictures provide a sense of drama and danger, though the fainthearted should take note that several images depict ravenous dinosaurs feasting rather bloodily upon others. Hoena packs in a lot of facts, ranging from one-sentence "Dino Bites" to fieldwork insights from paleontologist Sereno. One intriguing section discusses how dinosaurs cared for their young and shows fossils of the long, thin eggs of meat-eating dinosaurs; the bowling-ball-sized Diplodocus eggs; and the spiral patterns that some dinosaurs used to organize their eggs. The book doesn't delve very deeply, but like the dinosaurs, it covers a lot of ground. Grades 3-6. --Abby Nolan --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.

Superb pictures and well written bits of facts that are interesting and informative without being repetitive from so many other Dino books.

My 3yo loves this he can't read but he has memorized all the dinosaurs by me reading to him...love this book.

My 5 year old nephew loves dinosaurs and he loved this book. It has lots of info on dinosaurs and has some great illustrations. National Geographic definitely makes a great book. Even my husband liked looking at it and learning some new facts about dinos.

My three year old absolutely loves this dinosaur book. He reads it almost every day asking me about different dinosaurs and their names and what they like to eat.

Gave to granddaughter she loves dinosaurs.

I gave these books to our grand daughter. She has such interest in dinosaurs.

I want my ESL tutee to be knowledgeable about dinosaurs as he has expressed an interest in becoming a scientist. Although now very proficient in oral and written English, this first grader is just a sponge about reading and learning new things. His parents support my tutoring as I provide him with "Juana homework" as he helps his first grade teacher with students with need assistance. He is very nice to other students, although he does not like it that his mother has to drive his older brother to his middle school first. As a result, Diego is not always the first in line for his class. Oh, gush dern it! That is what he wants to be first in everything. Such an ambitious and talented tutee.
