The World Food Problem, 5th Ed.: Toward Understanding And Ending Undernutrition In The Developing World

Synopsis

The fifth edition of The World Food Problem reflects nearly a decade of new research on the causes and potential solutions to the problems of producing and distributing food in developing countries. With extensively updated data and new case studies throughout, this edition includes new or expanded discussions of such issues as genetically modified food, the impact of climate change, the quality of agricultural land and water, the significance of globalization, and implications of changes in demographic policy, such as the reversal of China's "one-child rule".

Customer Reviews

Praise for the previous edition: (Mark G. Cohen, Hunger Notes) A boldly multidisciplinary approach that captures all the complexity of the causes of, and solutions to, hunger ... in an engaging and often witty manner that is simple but never simplistic.

Howard D. Leathers is associate professor of agricultural and resource economics at the University of Maryland, College Park. The late Phillips Foster was professor emeritus of agricultural and resource economics at the University of Maryland, College Park.
