R. H. Angier was a recognized master arms technician. He lived in England.

This book contains a lot of good information, but most of it is outdated, calling for chemicals that are next to impossible to obtain today. Like most old do it yourself books, it makes too much use of words and not enough use of pictures. If you want to put a good, slow-rust bluing on a metal surface, simply buy and follow the instructions for Laurel Mountain Forge's solution.

My husband received this book for Christmas, and said it has everything you need to know.

This book came highly recommended as reference material and it has not disappointed. The only reason not to give it five stars is that the print is somewhat small.

The text is really small, and its evident that the author is REALLY impressed with himself...Almost seems like he was getting paid by the word..Useful if you want formulas from 1600...Waste of time and money....

Goed en duidelijk boek.

Great source of information

This book explicitly is refreashing. Its not a picture book. If you can read buy it. If not then buy another book. Great information, I plan to build my own blue/brown/blackening system. The information is right out of Smith/Wesson etc of the old west. These are your best library books. Save them keep them and best of all try them yourself. Experience the difference, Its clean and true to life not a s book. I love good gunbooks that are true. This was true and works for me. E-mail if it doesn't work. I will apologize personally.

A very informative book. Everything I needed to know on making browning mixtures and how to apply them.
